

London August 23. 1830

Dear George.

About a month ago I wrote to you by the Party, informing you that Mr. Miles had called at our house & informed me that you had been fully accepted by the L.M.S. as one of their Missionaries to which I do congratulate you now, accompanied with fervent prayers to God that he may vouchsafe to bless your ministry & arranged the poor Parkmen & other hearthens to whom it may please him to send you, as well as to bestow upon you health & strength to support those fatiguing labors, & to endue you with his Spirit to stand fast in the faith, & in all labors of faith & good works. I mentioned also that Henry had wrote to you himself & left his letter at the Mission house to be forwarded to you with the first opportunity, but what he had written I did not know, he keeps up pretty well at present, but what effect the winter may have upon him if it should set in very cold, as it did last winter is perhaps not doubtful since as it must prevent him from taking exercise by walking, & which is a great means of keeping down the Dropsy, of which he bears still the symptoms it will, & his feared return & perhaps in greater strength than before, in that case, I trust & pray to God for which I trust also that you will join your prayers that he may vouchsafe to prepare him, to a firm state of meeting his God when he cometh to judgment, he appears at present to be resigned to the catastrophe, his temper

I had intended to have directed this Box to the Care of Mr. W. J. Massey, for your father making Enquiry at the Mission House, Mr. Milne was informed that it had better be directed to the care of the Rev D. S. Phillips, since you have been assured that the L. M. S. Missionaries & it will reach you sooner than the other way which I felt sure it would.

appears milder all together, but from this we are to be sure not warranted to form an accurate judgement of his inward disposition, toward his God & his friends, but I trust that God will have mercy on him. I mentioned likewise in my last, that Milne with Elizabeth & family had transferred their Residence to Edinburgh; Milne has just come to London on the way of his Business, he says that Betty likes the Situation very well, & they think that they will do better there than in London, Milne & Betty desire their love to you & family & they do wish you all prosperity.
Mr & Mrs Stanhope do desire their best regards to your family & Mr Warner has desired me to present his & Mrs Warners best regards to you also, & so do Mr. Field & her daughters, the eldest Miss Mary, that was, has married a Mr. Bellin, a Surgeon, whom I do not know whether you may recollect, I do herewith send you a Suit of Black clothes, hope they may be wide enough for you, as I understand that you as stout as long, I have enclosed also a Jacket & waistcoat for John, & a further Jacket also for him, tell him his old father has sent it him, & to make haste to fill them out, I have also enclosed a Set of Newspapers of last Year with the exception of the one of the 15th of Dec. last which cannot be found supposing that Henry, who has them every week, after I have done with them, — has lost, Charlotte sends you an Evangelical Magazine, with the account of the death of the Rev W. Oome late Secretary to the L. M. S. & a few tracts, to give you a little News I will briefly inform you that on the 26th Jan last we lost by death, our King George 4th & have now a William the 4th former Duke of Cornwall who has become very popular, he appears to be a King after the people's heart in France a New Revolution has taken place, where the King Charles 10th & his Ministers had become the Revolutionists who by some wicked Ordinances attempted to crush the liberty of the Subject & to make himself an absolute King — but forgetting that all the maginations of men are vain when attempting to counteract the plans of the Almighty he has paid dearly for it, for after three days fighting between the Soldiers & the population of Paris, the latter obtained the completest victory ever obtained, by liberalism over despotism, & what is the most glorious is that the French have not stained this victory by bloodthirstiness, for they have with the greatest magnanimity & contempt sent the King & family out of the country, allowing him a yearly pension of about £240000. Sterling or 4 Millions francs, he is with his Suite at this moment at Poissy month, but is not expected to remain in England long, what a glorious struggle this, not accompanied as heretofore by any acts of violence but by the most heroic forbearance, now but his Ministers who signed the Ordinances will have their trials, & then they will be banished or from this Country, this life will undoubtedly be spared when you do write again, I will be obliged to you by informing me whether there is any truth in a story published there in a work called the Mirror, of a Scottish Colonist, whose Settlement was close to the Caffre, a belated his Name to have been either Williams, or Williamson, into whose Settlement the Orange Outlaws had made frequent Incursions, to steal Cattle & fowls, upon which they do chiefly live, that in one of their incursions Mr W's Servants appeared & put the Orange Outlaws to flight, across a river close by it wounded by a Gun shot a young Orange Outlaw, & after having killed him, which in sequel turned out to have been a son of this Chief, as a few weeks after the made an incursion into Mr W's Settlement, & carried off Mrs W. witnessed by some Caffres further up the river, but which was not to Mr W. who immediately thoroughly an enquiring Mr W. felt persuaded that she had been carried off by some stratagem of a Caffre chief who had sent some time previous to Mr W. for his wife, offering in exchange some oxen, & 2 or 3 of his finest Caffre women but which was refused by Mr W. as is very natural, the bearer of the commission after the last refusal, & after a serious pause,

This Morn'g I just are packing up, I found L. J. Davis, New Haven Bro's here, and that work-buddy, who he I send you, that the time permitted I've have got these day and they not being that can I send a piece of hardware for them & you boys can work for them can shaking his head, said to Mr W. You will repent of your treachery, this leading Mr W. naturally to suspicion, before mentioned he applied to commanding Officer on the Station for a company of armed Soldiers, to accompany him & his servants all around, to proceed to the Caffra Ekoffs demanding back his wife, the poor Caffre denied any knowledge of her, ~~that~~ Mr W. insisting on it, ~~that~~ was on the point of beginning hostility, when Capt Johnson the Officer ~~came~~ in the troops, his servant produced a man who had seen a large Ouryang Outang carrying off a female Mr W's wife across the river, on this discovery the Caffre chief furnished Mr W. with a number of his men to join Mr W. and Capt Johnson on the pursuit of discovery of Officals, who at the end of nearly two years perseverance was discovered amongst a Colony of the Ouryang Outangs as the Deven & the young son who had been carried off likewise, & both after a great deal of maneuver & caution were rescued, here we took upon the story as a fictitious romance but it is by some insisted on as a true story, & affirming that Mr W. has quitted the Colony altogether & returned to Scotland. Should there be any thing like truth in it, I should think that you must have heard some thing at least about it, & therefore I should be glad to hear from you, how far that report may be founded in truth or falsehood, in conclusion I hope that in your next you will be able to give a more favorable view of the poor Brethren, trusting that the Gospel light may have some more amongst them, — Dr Simpson was exceedingly glad to hear of your being accepted by the L. M. S. as you may well imagine, he has promised to write to you a little by the first opportunity, I must now conclude commending you to God's holy keeping, & if it should not be his will to see each other again in this world, that I may have the happiness of seeing you shine as a great Star before the throne of God & the Lamb, with kind love from your Sister & brother to you & family, & my own to you Mr & family remain Your affectionate father J. Wolfe
